

Mark Gibson

Founder & Chief Executive Officer, MintornEnergy

Mark Gibson is the visionary founder and Chief Executive Officer of MintornEnergy, bringing years of professional mining expertise and operational leadership to the forefront of the digital mining industry. With an extensive career spanning multiple established mining organizations, Mark has contributed significantly to infrastructure development, operational optimization, and energy-efficient extraction systems. His hands-on experience across diverse operational environments has shaped his deep understanding of both traditional and modern mining practices. Throughout his career, Mark has built a strong reputation for integrity, strategic thinking, and disciplined execution. His leadership philosophy centers on performance, transparency, sustainability, and long-term growth. Under his direction, MintornEnergy emphasizes scalable mining infrastructure, energy-conscious operational models, responsible resource management, and continuous technological advancement. His approach ensures that MintornEnergy remains positioned for stability, innovation, and sustainable expansion. Beyond his professional achievements in mining, Mark is also a certified professional diver — a discipline that reflects his composure under pressure, attention to safety, and methodical decision-making skills. These qualities translate directly into his executive leadership, where calculated risk assessment and steady execution define his management style. Today, Mark Gibson continues to guide MintornEnergy with a forward-thinking vision, focused on strengthening infrastructure, building strategic partnerships, and delivering long-term value to stakeholders worldwide.
